

Global Equity Income Strategy

FACTSHEET

October 2022

Monthly Portfolio Commentary

October was a surprisingly good month for global equities, rising some 6.2% in euros, despite inflation figures remaining high and central bankers reiterating their objectives to get inflation under control via higher interest rates. Company earnings were mixed, with many large technology companies disappointing whereas financials and industrials showed good resilience. The Global Equity Income portfolio was up 5.3% for the month. Strong performers included US industrial Honeywell (+20%), asset manager BlackRock (+16%), US pharmaceutical Merck (+16%) and Irish paper company Smurfit Kappa (+14%), all on good earnings results. On the negative side, Consumer Staples lagged with Diageo down 3% and Nestle down 1%. Over the month we bought oil giant TotalEnergies and US media company Comcast. Cash reserves were reduced to about 9.3%.

Why choose the Global Equity Income Strategy?

Much analysis has shown that in the long term the majority of equity market returns are made up of dividends and dividend growth. Hence we believe a portfolio combining high quality companies where management are focused on growing their dividend is very much aligned with our own investment beliefs.

Conservatism

Conservatism features strongly in our investment process when allocating our clients capital. We are unashamed of this and protecting our clients from losses is at the forefront of our risk management process.

Experience of the team

The team was one of the first investment managers to focus on dividend paying companies as a strategy. Over the last 30 years we have experienced the peaks and troughs of the markets and have successfully navigated these events by sticking rigidly to our investment philosophy and process.
